Dear customer:

Stryker Neurovascular has initiated a voluntary recall and removal for the devices identified above. Our records indicate that you have been supplied with at least one of the subject devices. We therefore request that you read this notice carefully and complete the actions requested by the manufacturer. The intent of this letter is to instruct you to return all impacted product to Stryker.

Issue:

Stryker Neurovascular has become aware that some units of Target Nano product do not have the intended stretch resistance. The sutures inside the coil that provide stretch resistance may have been damaged during manufacturing which can lead to an increased occurrence of coil stretching.

Potential Risk

Patients with implanted coils are not affected by this issue.

For potential patients- Suture breaking can lead to coil stretching. The most likely adverse health consequence from coil stretching is prolongation of the procedure after introducing into the patient, as the stretched coil needs to be removed and replaced, as directed by the IFU. There is a remote potential of thrombus formation when the stretched coil is left exposed in the blood flow. There will be no long term adverse health consequence after a stretched coil is removed from the body.

Risk Mitigation:

Follow the instructions below under Immediate Actions Required.

Completed Corrective Action

This is a lot-specific manufacturing issue that has been corrected. Target Nano quality has been maintained.

Urgent Medical Device Voluntary Recall

Immediate Action Required

Medical Device Recall Frequently Asked Questions

- (1) Why are the Target Nano Coils being recalled?
In certain lots of Target Nano detachable coils, the suture may be broken and this can lead to coil stretching.
- (2) What is the potential root cause?
As part of normal manufacturing processes, Target Nano Coils are exposed to heat during an electrical placement test. In certain lots where there was an equipment malfunction, the coils were exposed to temperatures higher than the suture melting temperature. In a portion of coils in the affected lots, this heat caused the suture to melt and break. Corrective action has been taken to address this issue.
- (3) Does this Recall involve global markets?
Yes, countries impacted include EMEA, Japan, China, and US.
- (4) Is the FDA aware of this recall?
The FDA and all affected worldwide regulatory authorities are being notified about this voluntary recall.
- (5) Have there been any patient injuries?
There have been 10 complaints from customers related to this issue. There have been no patient injuries reported in association with these complaints.
- (6) Are all Target Nano Detachable Coils impacted by this recall?
No. Only a limited specific lot numbers of Target Nano Detachable Coils are impacted. A list of all affected product has been included in each Customer Notification Letter.
- (7) If a customer has to return their Target Nano Detachable Coils, will they get a replacement?
Yes. Corrective action has been taken to address the manufacturing issue. New units are being manufactured with full replenishment over the next several weeks. All other coils are available and are suitable for patient treatment
- (8) Are there risks to patients in whom the affected lots have already been implanted?
No, coil stretching is evidence on coil deployment and does not occur post deployment and as a result there is no risk to patients who currently have units from the impacted lots implanted.
- (9) Is the quality of Target Nano detachable coils impacted?
No, we have taken immediate corrective action to the equipment malfunction to avoid any future issues.
